Cattlemen Fighting Prairie Fires in Northwest Texas.

ROUND-UPS.

Condition of Range and Cattle in Texas-A Cattleman's Words of Warning-Hold Back Your Cattle.

Fred Horsbrough, manager of the Espuella land and cattle company, is just down from the company's ranch, and brings a mixed account of good and bad. Cattle, he says, are in fine shape, and are taking on flesh rapidly. The company has shipped liberally this season and will send out about 3000 head of beef steors during the fall and winter, commencing in about three weeks and continue on until November.

"It has been rather dry with us until recently," he said; "not dry enough to burt cattle, but the grass on the range had become rather dry. Within the last two weeks, however, we have had pretty fair rains and things generally are in better hape. During the dry season when want of rain and the hot winds parched up the grass on the prairie we had great trouble with fires. Prospectors would come through the country and build a fire in such places as would cause disastrous confiagrations. One fire that was started by two men from Parker county about three weeks ago communicated to grass that was at least two feet high, and before we could extinguish it about 8000 acres of pasture had been burned. Another fire was started by the lightning, but did not do so much damage. Within a month's time we have had on our ranch seven alarms of fire, and I can tell you we were kept pretty busy. One alarm—the big one—that came in was eighteen miles from beadquarters, and it was a lively race to get there. We made the distance over hills and valleys, across rivers and creeks, in just one hour, and had one of the most des-perate fire fights I was ever in. When we reached the scene the borses were about done up, and when the fire had been put out the men were in but little better fix. Some of them would drop in their tracks from sheer exhaustion, and even I, who can stand about as much as most people, fainted while beating the

We have matters so arranged now that the fire, should it break out, can not get much start. I have the men in the center of the pastures and from their camp they can see smoke as soon as the fire starts, and as they will not have so far to ride to it as heretofore they will be able to check the flames before much damage is done. The fires which have been started heretofore have all been accidental, but were the result of carelessness. Range riders are now conpatrolling the roads, and it will be hard for much damage to be done this fall. The rains too, have lessened the danger in this respect and I feel much

A Cattleman's Advice to His Friends in Texas That Should be Heeded. ARKANSAS CITY, Kas., Aug. 24, 1890.

A WORD OF WARNING.

The Fort Worth Gazette: Seeing your Round-Up columns are devoted to the interest of cattlemen, I deem it no impropriety in addressing them through that source, and let them take it for what it is worth.

The president's declining to extend the time for vacating the territory will certainly have a demoralizing effect on the cattle market during September and the first part of October, and those who ship from localities not effected by this executive order, in September, will certainly rue it, for it will not only be the means of receiving small returns for their stuff, but will help demoralize the market and ne cause of those who have no other atternative, receiving almost nothing for their beef. Texas cattlemen are closely allied with those grazing herds in the territory, in fact they are a part of them, as about one-half are owned by men from that state; therefore I appeal to them to stop their shipments during September, give us unfortunate territory men a chance to market our stuff. It is useless for me to enumerate the causes why we have not shipped our cattle before this, suffice it to say they are such as we could not controle and have been fully discussed. wide as working to the interest of each other and loyal to a friend to a fault, and now is the time to show their loyalty, by giving those in the Indian Territory the market centers for thirty or forty days, and by doing this they will show themselves men of judgment, consideration and forethought. Respectfully, IKE T. PRYOR.

How Many Pigs? The question is asked: "How many pigs should a sow be allowed to raise?" It depends somewhat, of course, on the dam, her vigor and milking qualities; but eight or ten, at the most, is enough. If the number dropped exceeds ten the mational subject pleasing to the native surplus should be disposed of; generally Mexican. This company is encouraged a neighbor can be found who will gladly take it, and the balance will probably net more profit than the whole lot would if the attempt was made to raise them. In the giving it might be well to remember that the giver is under no obligation to give away the best. After we make such distribution the best pigs are generally left in our pens.

THE RUSH TO MARKET.

Shrewd Men are Watching the Diminishing Supply and Freezing to Their Cattle. There are some cattlemen who are to day waching the onward rush of cattle to the markets as a good general watches the movement of troops in a big battlewatching every feature and when the proper time comes they will move for-ward their herds and snatch profit from the field where so many have met financial disaster. The Field and Farm referring to the rush of cattle to the market says that for nearly two years past the cows and calves have been rushed into the beef market and slaughtered as never before. Those who have dered why the rise in cattle has not been more rapid and decided. But there is aiways plenty to most people as long as the market is well supplied, whether behind this visible supply there are nearly exhausted resources or not. It is the everlasting now which most people are interested in.

The people who watch the diminishing source of supply are bedging, holding on to their herds and getting ready for the tide. Touching this question of supply, one of our Eastern exchanges notes in the markets there the same condition of tide. Touching this question of supply, one of our Eastern exchanges notes in the markets there the same condition of things. It says: "The calf markets of the large Eastern cities have been largely N. E. Grammer.

overstocked this year. As a consequence many beef caives of excellent breeding have been almost been given away.
"Three years hence the owners of tain, but the depression in the cattle business has been such that farmers see no way to a profit in beef.

This surplus of good beef calves has started a curious feature of the dairy business that would seem to upset some of the old ideas of stock feeding. Some butter dairymen near New York are said to be buying steen calves of the beef breeds. They propose to utilize their skim milk in pr beef of superior quality which they can sell to advantage, being close to see how this scheme turns out."

Col. H. H. Campbell, superintendent of the Matador cattle company, is in the city, having come down from the ranch in the Panhandle Sunday. The colonel,

From the Panhandle.

who is generally in a good humor, met THE GAZETTE reporter with a pleasant smile on his face, and in answer to his numerous inquiries about cattle in the Panhandle generally, and on the Matador pastures particularly, said: "Cattle are in as fine shape as I ever knew them to be in August, and they are improving in many sections of the state every day. There are lots of fat cattle in the Panhaudie now, and by the time the fall shipments begin the country will be full of them. We have had splendid rains all along, and I learn to-day that heavy rains have been falling up the Denver road, as far south as Decatur, this morning. The range in that section where our ranch is located is very good, both as to water and grass—in fact it is as good as could be asked. Yes, we will ship this fall somewhere in the neighborhood of 5000 head of beef steers. We have shipped up to this time quite a number, which you have already pub-

Col. Campbell is rarely bothered by the condition of the cattle markets. He ships when conditions are best, and as the Matador cattle rank high they always bring top figures. They have been graded up until there are no cattle in the Southwest that can beat them.

Professor Gully of the Texas experimental station says: "Our cheapest concentrated food is cotton seed. For making beef or butter, two bushels is equivalent to one bushel of corn. It injures the quality of butter, making it white and hard, but if fed with enslinge or corn and bran, the butter is nicely colored and customers do not object to it, especially if the change from grass to cotton seed is made gradually. I have supervised the feeding of thousands of bushels of cotton seed to cattle of all ages, and have never noticed any serious injury to the animal from this feeding. In some places in the South, cows get no rough feed except cotton seed bulls from the oil mills. They are worth pound for pound the same as medium hay, when fed with grain or cotton seed meal."

Sheep and Goats. A sheep will live where a goat will, and yield a fleece and better meat than goat flesh. A mountainous country is better adapted to sheep than any other. The high and dry soil, the sweeter herbage, the purer air-all are in favor of the sheep. Land so poor that it will not support sheep should be planted with trees, if only hooppoles can be grown on it. But let the goat be turned out into the wilderness-it is all it is good for as a farm animal. The best breed of goats, however, have their uses as milk-producers for rural families who have not facilities for keeping cows; and then the goat should be put on as good rations as cow is. Out of nothing nothing comes, not even a goat or goat's milk.

J. E. Lee, general livestock agent of the Chicago and Rock Island road, wa in Kausas City last week, having just returned from a trip through Texas and the Indian Territory. To a newspaper reporter he stated that, as a result of his observations in the Territory, there were not near so many cattle there as the railroad men had calculated on hauling out this fall, and that those which are there for shipment are only in ordinary condition, as the dry weather has pre vented them from fattening.

DRAGGED TO DEATH.

The Sad Fate of a Six-Year-Old Son of A. P. Waldrip near Iredell-Correspondence of the Gazette

IREDELL, TEX., Aug. 24 .- A frightful accident occurred four miles west of this place about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in which James, the six-year-old son of A. P. Waldrip lost his life by being dragged by a runaway horse.

From the best information at hand it seems that Mr. Waldrip and his little sons aged six and eight years went out on the farm to feed and water a horse that had been staked on the grass during the day. The older brother it seems went after some corn and sent his younger brother James to lead the horse to water. In a short time the horse was seen running and apparently badly frightened, and as the little boy did not show up the family became apprehen-sive and started out in search of the missing child, and soon came upon its mangled remains. It had been dragged near 300 yards, and was bruised and disfigured almost beyond recognition. The skull was crushed and beat almost into a pulp, and the brains oozing and presented a sickening sight not soon to be forgotten by those who witnessed it. The rope had become entangled about the child's right leg and it was dragged feet foremost over a rocky declivity.

MEXICO GROWING.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 .- The Milwaukee panoramic company will produce a large panorama in Mexico City of some national subject pleasing to the native by the success they have attained in other large citles of the United States of and the capture of Yorktown. A large rolling mill also is shortly to be erected in Mexico with American capital. The mill will produce bar, beam, boller, rall, sheet and tank iron. It is said that profitable orders have already been seoured, sufficient to keep the mills employed for three years. Belgium and Paris recently gobbled up some large Mexican orders which should have been given to United States firms. These consisted of four large wholesale dry goods buildings and market houses erected in

Leon County Convicts.

Correspondence of the Gazetto CENTREVILLE, TEX., Aug. 23 .- The ommissioners' court will to-day open bids of those desiring to hire the county convicts for the next two years. Bidbids, obligating themselves to take all county convicts who do not immediately pay their fine and cost when notified by the county judge. A large percentage of the fines and costs have been lost by the county and officers heretofore because of parties being convicted who were unable to make convict bonds, and have to lie in jall, being an expense to the county instead of a benefit, finan-
